- §3. The Master's will be successfully completed when all modules are passed. They will be graded according to the score given in each module examination Honours or extraordinary mentions will be awarded by the Master's Academic Committee to the 10% top ranked students, based on a report issued by the Academic Committee.
- §4. Students shall successfully pass module examinations to complete each of the Master's modules. Module examinations may consist of several partial examinations. The form of examination is specified in each of the module description (see the detailed description of the module courses on EMJMPHID Subject Extended Information Annexe) and may be adapted to student having special handicaps.
- §5. Students may take each module examinations twice (ordinary and extraordinary examination) during the academic term in which the module is programmed except for the University of Nicosia which will follow the following Scheme of Assessment which states that:

“A student who has failed in the resit exam and/or coursework resubmission (i.e. failed a course), will be allowed to retake the failed course in its entirety just once. In such a case, all coursework components will need to be a new piece of work, rather than a revision of the previous coursework.”

As well as the MPH Programme regulations, where items 28-29 state:

28: Students who fail the resit Exam and/or their second coursework attempt, will be allowed to retake the entire failed course for one last time.

This final attempt at the failed course will entail repeating the whole course and including all its assessments irrespective of whether any assessments have been passed in previous attempts. When a course is repeated, the coursework needs to be a new piece of work, with the exception of the Research Project, where a third submission of the same project will be accepted following feedback from the Course Lead.”

When a student has to retake a course, they have to re-enroll for it and that automatically leads to the issuing of an invoice so that students can pay the relevant fees. The fees for each course are based on the ECTS credits of that course as described in the Tuition Fees explanation attached.

- §6. The Master’s Thesis will be connected to the activities to be developed during the internship. The Master’s Thesis topic will be decided by the Master’s Academic Commission in consultation with the Student Mentoring Professor under the SMP, taking into account Student’s preferences, Internship content and Student’s profile. The Academic Committee decision can be appealed before the Consortium Committee and further, according to the applicable legislation.
- §7. The Master’s Thesis shall be submitted before DATE of the year in which the student shall be completing the Master’s course. The Thesis shall be submitted with a brief report of the Thesis supervisor on the thesis content and methodology, the Internship activities and the outcomes that may be relevant to the Thesis. A chapter of the Master’s Thesis will describe the Internship activities and the outcomes that may be relevant to the Thesis.
- §8. Master Thesis will be evaluated by a Professor of the supervising University, assisted by two more Professors from other Consortium Members. Thesis will be marked between 0 and 10 points, 5 being the pass mark.

ANNEX 6 – Regulations for assessment of academic performance of students of Erasmus Mundus Master in Public Health and Disasters at the University of Oviedo

The evaluation of academic performance of students is made by a process that assesses three elements:

- (1) Physical attendance at lectures and seminars. An attendance to more than 80 % of scheduled lectures and seminars is a prerequisite in order to pass the course. When a student is unable to attend the scheduled lectures and seminars he/she must notify in advance this contingency to the Master's Coordinator and provide subsequent documentation stating the cause of absence. Students may not miss more than 20% of scheduled lectures and seminars, unless there is a reason to justify it and this is properly documented.
- (2) Exams to verify student's knowledge acquisition. Exams may be of theoretical and practical type and also of two types according to their scope: (i) Partial exams referred to a part of the content of the course, and (ii) Final exams related to the complete content of the course.
- (3) Essays and reviews of a specific issue of course contents to be made by students under the supervision of a lecturer.

The weighting of each of the three above elements in the final grade will be as follows: Up to 20% for attendance to lectures and seminars; up to 50% for the total results in the exams and up to 30% for the results obtained in the different essays and reviews performed.
